"Dear me!" was the reply. "I do wish I'd known about the paper!"

A young man went to Australia against his father's wishes. In one letter home he wrote: "I have bought a car. First feather in my cap."

In another he wrote: "I have bought a farm, another feather in my cap."

This went on for some time and always the son's letter finished with "another feather in my cap."

Later, the father received a letter which ran: "Dear dad, I am broke. Please send passage home."

The father replied: "Nothing doing. Take the feathers from your cap, stick them on your back, and fly home."

30,000 PEOPLE IN QUARANTINE

TO FIGHT OUTBREAK OF SPOTTED FEVER

Hobart (Oklahoma), Dec. 15.—More than 30,000 people living in Kiowa County, Oklahoma, have been placed in quarantine in an attempt to fight an epidemic of cerebro-spinal meningitis (spotted fever), which has already resulted in nearly a dozen deaths.

The National Guards have been called out to enforce the order, and all activity not connected with the care of sick or the delivery of essential provisions has been suspended.

As a result of the quarantine order: Churches, schools, shops and offices have been closed; The only newspaper in the town has ceased publication; Motoring has been virtually stopped and petrol may be sold only to persons holding a special medical certificate; and Gatherings of more than three people, other than members of a family, have been banned.

Food Ordered By Police

Hobart itself presents a dismal spectacle as Christmas draws near. The streets, already deserted, are almost entirely deserted, and there are no lights in the shop windows at night. A few shops, mainly chemists and grocers, have been allowed to remain open with skeleton staffs, but they are receiving most of their orders by telephone.

Only one person may enter a hair-dresser's shop at one time. No more than two persons may be admitted at once in the few restaurants remaining open.

Motorists from other parts of the country have been warned that if they enter the county they will not be allowed to leave unless they can show that they are free from infection.

STUDENTS RIOT IN RANGE ROAD

CHIEF INSPR. LOVELL STRUCK WITH WOODEN BAR

A Suspended Sentence For Chinese Youth

Shanghai, Dec. 21.

In addition to Insp. F. West, Sub-Insp. J. Furness, and Insp. J. M. Watson of the Central Police Station, who were assaulted with bamboo poles by students and sustained injuries in Tuesday morning's demonstration on Nan-king Road, Chief-Insp. Lovell also was slightly injured the same day in another demonstration staged by students on North Hunan Road, near Range Road. It came to light in the First Special District Court yesterday morning, when Wong Tsing-koh, a student from the Fuhai Middle School, was charged with assault on the police.

The student, who was alleged to have thrown stones and other missiles at the officers. The court found the youth guilty on the charge of assault causing bodily harm and sentenced him to fifteen days' detention. The sentence, however, was suspended for two years.

PROSECUTION STORY

According to the prosecution, the reserve unit was operating in the West Hongkong District on Tuesday when a large number of students tried to come into the Settlement from the North Railway Station. The gate was closed on North Hunan Road and finding it impossible to enter by this way, the students withdrew and tried to enter by a passage leading to Range Road. The accused stood in front of a crowd and when the police tried to close the passage, the accused struck Chief Insp. Lovell with a wooden bar and also threw stones and other missiles at the police. The accused was arrested by a Chinese sub-inspector of the police.

A Russian van-driver testified that he saw the accused holding a wooden bar when the students faced the police. The accused questioned by the judge, denied having held any weapon or having thrown anything at the police. He admitted he was a member of the crowd at the time.

EXPERIMENTAL WORKS ON ROADS

Report Dealing With Footpaths

The question of the provision of footpaths is referred to in the report for the year 1934 of the Experimental Work on Highways (Technical) Committee, which has just been issued. Before dealing with the contents of this report, its relationship to the report of the Road Research Board, published a few weeks ago, may be explained, as some confusion between the two reports is excusable. The Road Research Board was appointed in 1933 to advise generally on the conduct of road research undertaken by the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research, the duty of directing and supervising the work of the Harmondsworth experimental station being transferred to the department from the Ministry of Transport. The Board also took over the laboratory work of the technical advisory committee which had hitherto advised the Ministry on technical matters. The investigations undertaken in continuance of the earlier work are now dealt with in two sections. The purely laboratory work is handled by the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research, while road tests under normal traffic conditions are under the care of the Experimental Work on Highways (Technical) Committee. This committee was appointed by the Minister of Transport, who thus continues to be responsible for experimental work under normal traffic conditions.

SURFACES INFERIOR

Turning now to the portion of the report dealing with footpaths, it is stated that there have been complaints in many instances that the surfaces of footpaths are so inferior to those of the adjacent carriageway that pedestrians prefer the risk of accident on the road to the discomfort of walking on the footpath. This statement may cause some surprise, which will be accentuated by the succeeding remark, to the effect that divisional road engineers have informed the committee that, in some cases, the cost of maintaining footpaths which are not subjected to much pedestrian traffic has been very high, in some exceptional cases exceeding even that of maintaining the carriageway. In view of the relative loading and impact shocks to which the footway and carriageway are respectively subject, the circumstances in which the cost of maintaining the former exceeds that of maintaining the latter are difficult to visualise, and we can only imagine that the road engineers in question are comparing exceedingly badly-laid footpaths with well-laid carriageways, or have in mind cases in which the footpath has been repeatedly to be taken up for pipe work, but if so, the comparison is hardly fair. The statement, as it stands, certainly calls for qualification, but no explanation is in fact given in the report of these apparently excessive maintenance costs for footpaths, it being simply stated that the committee have arranged with the County Councils of Surrey, the Isle of Ely, and Striling, and with the County Borough Council of Leeds, for experiments to be undertaken in order to compare a number of methods of footpath construction with due regard to cost and durability. It is difficult to accept the implication that, these further experiments are necessary; an examination of existing footpaths should really accord all the information required.

NON-SKID SURFACE

The report as a whole is mainly a record of progress in the various lines of investigation undertaken by the committee, the experiments begun during 1934 having, in general, taken the form of extending the scope of previous work, or of repetitions under different conditions of climate and traffic. The only new field of investigation added to the programme, other than that dealing with footpaths already referred to, was that relating to thin surfacing coats for carriageways. The latter investigation was carried out with a view to finding thin coats capable of affording a non-skid surface for a period of about five years without requiring surface dressing. In this connection, it is stated that, although the stability of bituminous surfacing materials has continued to improve in recent years as the experience of those responsible for their design has increased, many such materials undergo deformation, or develop minor irregularities, which detract from the good riding qualities of the road, and tend to shorten its useful life. During 1934, trial sections of a number of materials suitable for forming a thin non-skid carpet of a durable nature were laid down by highway authorities in co-operation with the committee on the Worcester-Tewkesbury Road, the Oxford-Henley Road, and the Melrose-Galashiels Road.

JUNKERS' PLANE IN SHANGHAI

SUCCESSFUL CONCLUSION TO NINE-DAY FLIGHT

Chartered From The Lufthansa Line

Shanghai, Dec. 30. Despite the bad weather conditions prevailing, the giant Junkers tri-motor D-AMAK landed at the Lunghua Aerodrome at 4.20 o'clock yesterday afternoon, only a few minutes later than her scheduled time, bringing to an end a successful nine-day flight from Berlin, Germany. Her crew were met and welcomed by officials of the Eurasia Aviation Corporation, which company is taking over the huge monoplane for use in China.

This is the fourth plane of this type—the Junkers 52/3m—to have been chartered by the local aviation corporation from the Lufthansa Air Line within recent months, and it is expected that she will be put into service in a few days, most probably, on the Shanghai-Chengtu run. The D-AMAK left Berlin on December 20 under the command of Captain Krueger, 52 years of age, and universally acknowledged to be one of Germany's leading pilots. Copiloting the plane was Flight-Captain E. Tusche, well-known post-war flier, who was accompanied by Mr. Hugo Krause, an experienced mechanic who has been his companion on many thousands of miles of night flying. The fourth member of the crew, Mr. W. Borell, wireless operator, is one of the most experienced men in the Lufthansa service. In this particular type of work, and for some years past has been flying regularly on the night route between Cologne and London.

Captain Krueger piloted the plane out over the same route as that taken by Captain Harry Rother when he brought a similar type of ship, the D-ANYK, to China in September, namely by way of Athens, Baghdad, Karachi, Rangoon, and Hanoi. The D-ANYK made the trip in just under eight days, but flying conditions were better then.

High Performance

The Junkers 52/3m is a high-performance plane, equally suited for both freight or passenger work, and embodies among a large number of other safety features a crash-proof cabin. Of exceedingly robust construction, thanks largely to the fact that it is built entirely of metal, the plane possesses a high degree of reliability, owing to both its tri-motor design and to its large reserve of power.

The cabin, which is pleasantly heated, contains twelve leather seats and a bench to accommodate two more persons, with the usual parachute incorporated in each seat. An average cruising speed of about 180 miles an hour is maintained in normal flight, but despite this the Junkers' landing speed, fully loaded, is only 62 miles an hour. Aero-dynamical design is responsible in the form of wing, fuselage, and tail, the Junkers' "aero-

THE HUMAN MACHINE

Work Shop Methods

The twenty-second Thomas Hawksley lecture was delivered at the Institution of Mechanical Engineers on Friday last, November 29, by Professor A. V. Hill, O.B.E. Dr. Hill is Professor of Physiology, University of London, and took as his subject "Muscles and Nerves." In introducing him, the president, Colonel Davidson, said that in recent years the intention had been to widen somewhat the range of subjects covered by this annual lecture. Professor Hill, in his introductory remarks, spoke of his connection with Kennedy, Bertram Hopkinson and Sir Horace Darwin, and referred to the connection of engineers with physiologists, not only in the design of machines, but also nowadays in connection with work-shop methods. Dr. Hill, working under pressure in calculations were cases in which physiological research and engineering had gone hand in hand. Work at high temperatures and air conditioning, food preservation, and flying at high altitudes, were other developments in which engineering alone was helpless. The main part of the lecture was divided into two portions, the first of which dealt with muscle and the second with nerves and the transmission of messages. In the first part the lecturer dealt with the power which the human body could develop and the means of recovery in a manner which must have appealed to all engineers; the second part, devoted to the control of the muscles by the nervous system, referred to investigations made possible by recent advances in radio-engineering in connection with the electro-chemical waves transmitted.

NEW CONTRACTS

Messrs. Harland and Wolff, Limited, North Woolwich, E.16, have received an order from Messrs. C. and A. Ehrhardt, Limited, London, for six open swim barges, each 39 ft. 6 in. long, and to carry 105 tons.

Messrs. Allica Craig Limited, Strand-on-the-Green, Chiswick, London, W.4, have received an order for a two-cylinder 12-24 h.p. Diesel engine for direct coupling to a 10-KW generator for the steam yacht Schelvan. Orders for 24-40 h.p. and 64-96 h.p. marine Diesel engines have come from India and for similar engines from Jamaica and Egypt.

Messrs. Merryweather and Sons, Limited, Green-wich-road, London, S.E.10, are to supply the fire and salvage equipment to be installed on a twin-screw Diesel-electric tug and tender ordered from Messrs. Harland and Wolff, Limited, Belfast by the Belfast Harbour Commissioners. The equipment includes a high-life, three-stage, electrically-driven centrifugal fire pump capable of delivering 2,000 gallons per minute, and a 5-in. fire "motor."

Heavy wing," which, like an exaggerated aileron, banks air down in front of the low single wing to form a very efficient air brake, is responsible in the latter.

The sight of this type of plane over Shanghai has now become a familiar sight to residents, and with the possible exception of the Douglas monoplane used by the C.N.A.C. on the Shanghai-Peking run, it is the largest to be used in China for civil aviation. It has a wing span of 96 feet, an overall length of 82 feet, and a total height of 18 feet.

It has a ceiling of 21,325 feet, and a service ceiling with one engine shut off and at 70 per cent. of its total engine output, of 8,900 feet. In addition, it can be converted at will, and in a short space of time, from a land-plane to a sea-plane, and vice versa. The equipment includes both blind-flying instruments and a radio-direction finder—N.C.D.N.

ENGINEERING AND BUILDING

EARLY MARINE- ENGINEERING PRACTICE

The Committee In The Year 1822

FARADAY'S HELP SOUGHT

In a lecture on "Some Early Marine Engineering Experiences and Practice," delivered before Lloyd's Register Staff Association on November 7, Engineer Captain Edgar C. Smith said a fruitful source of information was the reports of Government committees. One of the earliest of these committees concerned with steam boats was called the "Hoyhead Roads Committee." The object of this committee, which was appointed in 1822 and was presided over by Sir Henry Parnell (afterwards Lord Congleton), was to inquire into the Post Office Steam Packet Service. Among the engineers who were examined by the committee were Joshua Field, Timothy Braham, Bryan Donkin, Mare Brunel, David Napier, Charles Wye Williams and Jacob Perkins. On two occasions Faraday was a witness, and this was probably the first instance of an eminent chemist being called in to give advice on marine engineering. Faraday, besides giving information on the salts in sea water and the conditions which must be present for the various salts to be deposited, suggested that the engineer should be provided with a hydrometer with one, or at most two, marks upon it, the one to indicate the density of the water when it began to deposit common salt, and the other when it began to deposit sulphate of lime. He also suggested the use of lime, potash or soda for neutralising the acidity of the boiler water, and the provision of temperature tubes in coals. Some of Perkins's evidence related to the use of the boilers of Oliver Evans in America. Evans's boilers were cylindrical, 18 ft. long and 30 in. in diameter. The wrought-iron plates were 5/16 in. thick. At each end of the cylinder was a disc of cast-iron 4 in. thick, four times as strong as the wrought-iron part. "When the boiler gives way," said Perkins, "which must necessarily be the case sooner or later, it will be at the weakest part. The rend or opening, which takes place when the boiler gives way to relieve itself, discharges no more steam than is usual for the safety valve to emit." Such rends were easily repaired with a patch of lead inside the boiler secured by a wooden strut.

EARLY FLUE BOILERS

After describing the construction of the early flue boilers and the various types of paddle engines, Captain Smith drew attention to the work of Samuel Hall (1781-1863), on the surface condenser. The marine condenser as we have it to-day was essentially the child of Hall. He it was who first used the combination of a tubular condenser with screwed ferrules, a circulating pump, an air pump, and an evaporator for make-up feed. The first ship fitted with Hall's arrangement was the Windermere, engined by Messrs. Fawcett, Preston and Company. In the "Mechanics Magazine" for September 12, 1836, was a letter from George Peel, of the old firm of Peel, Williams and Peel, of Manchester, which ran: "I yesterday witnessed with much satisfaction the performance of a pair of steam engines, fitted up with your recent improvements on board the Windermere. The engines were working well without anything like effort, although the vacuum was impaired in consequence of a defective joint, yet the barometer attached to the condenser indicated the rise of a column of mercury equal to 28 1/2 in., the ordinary barometer standing at the same time at 30 1/2 in." Hall's condensers were fitted to the Wilberforce, India Queen, Sirius, British Queen,

H.M.S. Megaera and other vessels, but after a few years their use was abandoned.

TOO MUCH GREASE USED

Some engineers thought them expensive and unnecessary, but the real practical objection to them was due to the great quantity of grease used in both engines and boilers at that time. In a statement of the relative merits of jet condensing and surface condensing engines it was said: "In injection engines the oil which is put into the cylinders, stuffing boxes, slides, &c., is speedily carried away by the injection water into the sea"; while "in the patent engines, not a particle of the oil which is given to the internal parts of the engine, &c., is wasted away into the sea, or lost, but it is all carried into the boilers, whereby they are protected from corrosion, and an ample lubrication of the engine is effected at scarcely any cost." Unfortunately, a great deal of the grease stayed in the condenser tubes and they quickly became clogged up. Hall deserved a better fate than that which befell him, for when he died in Morgan-street, Tredegar-square, Bow, at the age of 82, he was in very reduced circumstances.

When the screw replaced the paddle, marine engineers, said Captain Smith, found themselves faced with four difficult problems, among which, the most difficult was perhaps the design of the stern-tube bearing. When brass bearings were used, the wear was very rapid, and the safety of ships was sometimes jeopardised through the inflow of water as the bearing wore away. It was John Penn who systematically set about finding a solution to the problem, and from his experiments came the introduction of the stern-tube bearing fitted with strips of lignum vitae. An account of his work is to be found in the Proceedings of the Institution of Mechanical Engineers for 1856 and 1858.

GLASGOW FOREMEN'S DINNER

Speaking at the recent annual dinner of the Glasgow District of the Foremen's Mutual Benefit Society, Mr. Alexander S. MacLellan, president of the North-West Engineering Trades Employers' Federation, said that any increase in the prosperity of our heavy industries which might be brought about by a larger naval programme, by a much overdue increase in merchant work, or by the development programme of the railway companies, would immediately show how true was the shortage of skilled men. "Let us see to it," he said, "that we are training sufficient young men to take their places in the skilled ranks, and what is just as important let us try to absorb as many as possible of these young men who during the past few years of depression have not had the opportunity of doing a good day's work."

There were also a great many skilled men Mr. MacLellan went on to say, who had been out of work for a long time, and had become a bit rusty. It was quite conceivable, that when one of these men was given a chance he was not 100 per cent. efficient, and required time to return to his normal skill. He suggested that the foremen should appreciate that aspect of the problem and give the workman time to settle down.

400 GUESTS AT CATHEDRAL

FASHIONABLE EDINBURGH WEDDING

Seven Bridesmaids

London, Dec. 13. Masses of bronze chrysanthemums across the choir screen and white lilies on the altar made a charming setting yesterday in the Cathedral Church of St. Mary, Edinburgh, for the wedding of Miss Margaret Sybil Orr and Mr. George Edward Orr Walker, B.A. (Oxford), LL.B., Edinburgh.

Over 400 guests attended the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. S. J. Marriott, rector of St. Baidred's Episcopal Church, North Berwick.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Orr, of Kilduff House, Drem, East Lothian, and the bridegroom is a son of Mr. and the late Mrs. Archibald Walker, of Newark Castle, Ayr.

UNUSUAL HEADRESS

A pretty picture was presented as the bride, escorted by her father and followed by her seven bridesmaids, passed slowly up the aisle preceded by the choir singing "Lead us Heavenly Father."

She wore a lovely gown of heavy gold lame cut on tight-fitting lines. The bodice had a band of ermine fur at the throat, sleeves puffed at the top and tapering slightly to the wrists. The very long train was continued from the folds of the skirt.

The unusual headress was a diadem of ermine fur, from which was draped a veil of white tulle which stretched beyond the train. The bride wore no jewels. She carried a sheaf of lilies of the Nile.

The bridesmaids were Misses Zoe and Maude Orr, sisters of the bride; Miss Adele Walker, Miss Johan Mitchell, Miss Peggy Rose, Miss Mary Donaldson, and Miss Prudence Daniel.

WEDDING GIFTS

Rich cream crepe woven with pale gold thread was chosen for their dresses, which, cut on straight Empire lines, had high collars of pale gold lame, and were laced up the back with gold ribbon. They had halo headresses of gold leaves, and carried sheaves of dark red chrysanthemums tied with gold streamers.

Mr. C. J. D. Shaw was best man. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Orr held a reception in the Freemasons' Hall, Edinburgh, where the wedding gifts were displayed. The bride and bridegroom will make their home at 21 Moray Place, Edinburgh.

The wedding gifts included:—From the staff at Newark Castle:—Antique mahogany bureau. Officers of Ayrshire Yeomanry:—Silver salver inscribed with 22 signatures.

Staff at Kilduff:—Pyrex dish in beaten silver stand.

Staff of James Miller and Son:—Reading lamp with silver grey-bound.

Bridegroom to bride:—Diamond bracelet, diamond wristlet watch, broadtail coat, and ermine cape.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LESSON SERMON

First Church of Christ, Scientist Subject: God.

The subject of the Lesson Sermon in all churches of Christ, Scientist, to-morrow, January 5, will be: God.

The Golden Text will be: Among the gods there is none like unto thee, O Lord; For thou art great, and doest wondrous things: thou art God alone. (Psalms 86:8).

Among others the following citations from the Bible will be read:—

"And I saw a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away: and there was no more sea."

And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying: Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God. And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away." (Revelation 21: 1, 3 and 4).

The Lesson Sermon will also include the following passages from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:

In Revelation xxi, 1 we read:—"And I saw a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away; and there was no more sea."

"This testimony of Holy Writ sustains the fact in Science, that the heavens and earth to one human consciousness, that consciousness which God bestows, are spiritual, while to another, the unillumined human mind, the vision is material."

"Accompanying this scientific consciousness was another revelation, even the declaration from heaven, supreme harmony, that God, the divine Principle of harmony, is ever with men, and they are His people."

"This is Scriptural authority for concluding that such a recognition of being is, and has been, possible to men in this present state of existence, that we can become conscious, here and now, of a cessation of death, sorrow, and pain. This is indeed a foretaste of absolute Christian Science." Page 572 and 573).

Reports of the desecration on December 5 by bandits of a group of tombs belonging to officials of the Ming dynasty, have been confirmed by a descendant of one of the officials in Peking. It is estimated that the loss totals about $1,000,000. According to an investigation, these tombs comprise about 200 graves of former officials of the Ming dynasty and their relatives. The size and wealth of these tombs, it is claimed, rival the famous Tung-Ling Tombs near Malacca, in which many of the Ching dynasty emperors and officials were buried. A group of thirty outlaws descended on the tombs on December 6 and after secretly tying up the watchmen and their families, the robbers dug up several big graves and decamped with their loot, says a Chinese report. According to the informant, the articles stolen included a jewelled sword valued at about $500,000, a large pearl about the size of a ping-pong ball, valued at $30,000, and several other smaller precious stones. The police and military authorities have been requested to investigate the robbery.

OUR OBSOLETE WARSHIPS

WORLD'S HIGHEST PERCENTAGE

Submarine War Rules

London, Dec. 11. Figures of relative strength already disclosed to the Naval Conference now sitting in London show that the British Navy contains a much higher percentage of obsolete or over-age tonnage than any other navy. One-third of Britain's cruisers and approximately one-half of her destroyers are over the age limit or will be by the end of next year.

In British circles satisfaction at the belated admission of France and Italy to the rules governing the conduct of submarine warfare is tempered by certain practical reflections. These rules are embodied in Article 22 of the London Treaty.

It is true that they prohibit a submarine from sinking a merchant ship without warning, or before the people on board have been given a chance to reach land. On the other hand, they empower the submarine to use her torpedoes in the event of "persistent refusal to stop or of active resistance to visit and search." In British naval quarters the view is expressed that the new rules may prevent merchant ships from carrying a defensive armament, which in the late war proved one of the surest antidotes to submarine attack.

This week it will probably become known whether Japan, in demanding full parity with the British Empire and the United States, has really said her last word. If she has, then the Conference cannot possibly reach an agreement on quantitative limitation, and apart from such "gentlemen's agreements" as may be reached between two or more of the Powers concerned there will be nothing to stop a new shipbuilding race.

The most hopeful feature of the situation is the apparent readiness of all the delegations to fix definite limits to the size and fighting power of future warships. It has been arranged that the Conference shall adjourn on Dec. 31 till Jan. 2.

SEVEN MORE CASES

In view of the spread of the disease the Medical Department emphasize the need for very strict precautions to avoid possible infection. "Free Press."

QUEEN'S THEATRE
A Change In The Programme

An announcement was made by the Queen's Theatre yesterday that on Sunday the superb picture "Blossom Time" will be shown instead of "Two for To-night."

"ESCAPE ME NEVER"
"Escape Me Never," the film of the sensational stage hit, comes to the King's Theatre on Wednesday with the brilliant star, Elisabeth Bergner, and many of the principals of the original London cast including Hugh Sinclair, Leon Quartermaine and Griffith Jones.

The Margaret Kennedy play offers the tiny Austrian actress, who was last seen by film fans in the title role of "Catherine the Great," her finest and most lovable role as Gemma Jones, the little waif who is found wandering about Venice half starving and given shelter by Sebastian Sanger, a penniless young composer.

In the romantic atmosphere of the Dolomites, Sebastian develops an attachment for the little creature, who loves him. But when he meets Fenella, the beautiful aristocratic fiancée of his brother, Caryl, he falls madly in love with her.

"THE LAST OUTPOST"
Anxious mothers need have no fear in taking their children to see Claude Rains in a motion picture. The actor insisted that it be specified in his new Paramount film contract that he does not have to appear in any more sinister roles. Consequently, the star of "The Invisible Man," and other eerie films appear in a straight dramatic role in "The Last Outpost," the Paramount production now playing at the Queen's Theatre, with Cary Grant, Gertrude Michael, Kathleen Burke and Colin Tapley.

Richard Tauber the world's most famous tenor as he appears in Schubert's "Blossom Time" showing from to-morrow at the Queen's Theatre.

"BLOSSOM TIME"
Everyone has heard of the golden voice of Richard Tauber, famous tenor who started off the phenomenal vogue of "You Are My Heart's Delight," but how many people realize that he is also a clever composer of music, and has often sung his own compositions in public?

Here Tauber made his first British picture "Blossom Time" which opens at the Queen's Theatre to-morrow, for British International Pictures at Estree, and wrote specially for this film several fine musical numbers which he also sings in the film.

Directed by Paul Stein, who was a schoolboy friend of Tauber's, the film is based on an entirely new version of "The Life Of Schubert," and some of Schubert's original works have of ours been used.

M-G-M's New Mammoth Musical Show! "Broadway Melody of 1936" with Jack Benny, Eleanor Powell, Robert Taylor, Heading Cast of 15 Stars! 200 Girls! showing to-day at the King's & Alhambra Theatres.

"BROADWAY MELODY OF 1936"

Six months of extensive preparation, including weeks of dance rehearsals, lengthy research for magic sets, designing of dresses and gowns by Adrian, a complete Broadway dress rehearsal for the penthouse number, and four months of filming was necessary at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios for their most ambitious musical, "Broadway Melody of 1936," which plays this week end at the Alhambra and King's Theatres.

The modernized Manhattan penthouse, the setting for one of the five elaborate dance ensembles, is the largest ever built at that studio for a single musical sequence.

The furniture for the scene was controlled by springs and operated by a board similar in many respects to a piano. A slight touch on one of the keys caused a grand piano to rise to the level of the floor within five seconds. Other keys brought the same results with tables, chairs, fountains and lounges. By reversing the pressure of the keys the floor could be bared in a flash.

The well known tired business man and even those not so tired as well as Mrs. T. B. M. and all the children will find entertainment of a new and fascinating order in "Broadway Melody of 1936," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's most ambitious musical extravaganza, which is now showing at the King's and Alhambra Theatres.

Lavish and spectacularly beautiful dance routines staged by Dave Gould, whose "Caricatures" and "Continental" created such a furor, aroused the enthusiasm of the first night audience as did the five new song hits by Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed.

New screen faces vie for honours with established favorites in the new musical attraction and Jack Benny, whose popularity on the radio surpasses all others, proves just as delightful in his work before the camera.

Around the Courts

Two Chinese Lai Sui-chung, 24, shoe-maker, and Lai Pak-shu, 33, shoe-maker, appeared before Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday and were charged with having inflicted bodily injuries on Ngan Hing 36, cook, at No. 452 Shanghai Street on December 21, last year.

Det. Sgt. Dowman prosecuted and Mr. Leo D'Almada appeared for the complainant. In outlining the facts of the case, Detective Dowman said that the complainant went with the second defendant's kit-fat wife to the floor to collect a debt of $10 from Li Ping. This man had no money but said that he would pay later. An argument followed, and the first defendant was alleged to have struck complainant on the head with a hammer and then later second defendant helped him to push the complainant out of the room.

He went outside and met a constable and told him what had happened where upon the constable arrested the two defendants.

Medical evidence given by Dr. G. A. V. Gr. Mills showed that the complainant had several head injuries. The doctor said that it was possible that the man may have been struck on the head by a hammer or he may have fallen down some concrete stairs.

His Worship bound the complainant and the two defendants over to keep the peace for 6 months in the sum of $25.

An inquiry was held by Mr. K. Keen at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday into the circumstances surrounding the death of Chan Tse Chow a prisoner who died at the Lai-Chu-Kok prison hospital on January 2, 1935.

The jury consisted of Messrs. E. C. Fernandes (Foreman), H. A. Remedios and J. Ming.

In evidence Principal Warder, F. R. Fung, stationed at Lai Chi Kok Prison said that the deceased prisoner was sentenced on August 9, 1935 to 12 months hard labour. He was transferred from Victoria Gaol to Lai-Chu-Kok prison on August 23, 1935. Prisoner was admitted to the prison hospital on December 30 and died at 8.05 a.m. on January 2.

Dr. G. H. Henry, Medical Officer of the Kowloon Public Mortuary said in evidence that he performed a post-mortem examination on the body of a Chinese who was about 64 years of age.

He found deceased to be suffering from tuberculosis of the lungs, but there were no external injuries. The other organs of the body were all healthy. Death, the doctor said, was due to pulmonary tuberculosis.

The jury passed a verdict of death from natural causes.

"There are a bunch of hooligans in this area, and they intimidate constables, especially Indians, with a view to getting prisoners off," remarked Sub-Inspector Langley when prosecuting Wong, in, unemployed, before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy yesterday, on a charge of obstructing Indian police constable, P.C.B. 773 in the performance of his duty at Lockhart Road on Thursday.

It was stated by Sub-Inspector Langley that the constable had arrested a hawker selling cooked food, and the defendant and others attacked the constable, kicking him in the back and tearing the front of his shirt. The defendant was arrested but the other men escaped.

The defendant admitted the charge, and was sentenced to two months' hard labour.

Sentence of four months' hard labour was imposed by Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy yesterday, on Leung Yau, unemployed, aged 31 years, who admitted having broken into No. 24 Broadwood Road and stolen 32 pieces of crockery, two hams, a tin of oil and five pieces of clothing on the night of December 31.

Detective Sergeant Fitches said defendant broke into the kitchen about 3 a.m. by breaking two window panes. At 7 a.m. a constable saw a coolie carrying a basket containing some of the articles, and asked him where he had obtained them. The coolie pointed out the defendant who was just behind. The defendant then admitted the theft. The value of the articles stolen was about $30, and the complainant was a merchant named Kan Ying-po.

Kan Cheung, 29, coolie, appeared before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Police Court yesterday charged with the possession of five forged $10 notes of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation.

tion knowing them to be forged and with intent to defraud. On the application of Detective Inspector M. Murphy, the defendant was remanded for 48 hours in police custody.

One month's hard labour was imposed on Chan Sun, 33, unemployed, when he appeared before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy yesterday and admitted the theft of three cotton singlets from a shop at 170, Queen's Road Central, Lam On-sing, 32, of Swatow, pleaded guilty to the theft of a brass charcoal stove and a meat chopper from 239 Wing Lok Street. The defendant was bound over on condition that he return to Swatow, his fare to be provided from the Poor Box. Sub-Inspector Walsh prosecuted.

Tse Kwai, 29, shop tiki, appeared before Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday and pleaded guilty to a charge of having conspired with others unknown to commit a robbery at No. 45 Mongkok Road on December 31. Another man, Li Po, 22, unemployed, admitted having assaulted Wong, King, firewood shopkeeper, with intent to rob. On the application of Detective Sergeant Ellis, defendants were remanded until to-day.

A fine of $3 was imposed upon Lieut. E. O. Wanlis, of Kingsdale Hotel, Cameron Road by Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday for failing to have a red light on the rear of his private car No. 1452 at Sai Kung Road on December 10 at 7 p.m. H. J. Gutierrez, of No. 22 Granville Road, was summoned for a similar offence, and was also fined $3.

Mohomed Nawaz, 19, of no Hong Kong address, was charged before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy yesterday with entering the Colony without a valid passport on or about December 25. He pleaded guilty. Detective Sergeant Loughlin stated that defendant arrived from Singapore as a stowaway and had since been staying with an uncle in Kowloon. He was arrested by an Indian constable on Thursday. He was unable to describe the ship on which he came from Singapore. The Magistrate imposed a fine of $20 or, in default, one month's hard labour and made an expulsion order.

Li Tak, 24, a returned banished who was charged before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy yesterday, said he came back as he was suffering from a disease and tried to get treatment at the Tung Wah Hospital. Sub-Inspector J. J. Walsh said the man was in the Mental Hospital and was discharged on December 18 on which day he was deported from Hong Kong for a period of ten years. The Magistrate remanded the case for one week for the accused to be medically examined. Chan Wai, 24, another returned banished, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment. The Magistrate remarked that he imposed a light sentence in view of the accused's state of health. Sub-Inspector A. Kirby prosecuted.

Chan Chung, unemployed, was sentenced to one year's hard labour by Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy yesterday, for having returned from banishment before the expiry of his term of ten years received in July last year. Defendant admitted having returned on two previous occasions, and stated he had come back this time to have an operation performed on his eye. Cho King-cheung, unemployed, also charged with having returned from banishment before the expiry of his term of ten years received in October last year, was sentenced to six months' hard labour.

Appearing on remand before Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday, Fu Kam, 43, travelling tradesman, was fined $25 for assaulting a 59-year-old shopkeeper, Lam Tak, on December 23. Detective Sergeant Ellis stated that defendant went to see the complainant at his shop at Shanghai Street, and they had a quarrel and "row" were exchanged. Defendant picked up a stool and tried to hit complainant with it. Defendant alleged that the quarrel began when complainant refused to repay a debt of $50.

A fine of $50 or, in default, six weeks' hard labour was imposed on Wong Kuo, 40, street coolie, for keeping a common gaming

A SORDID CRIME

Youth Gets His Deserts

Pleading guilty to a charge of having indecently assaulted a five-year old girl named Wong Yut Ha at No. 84 Apiti Street, ground floor, on December 31, an unemployed youth, Hau Yim Kam aged 19 was yesterday sentenced to six months' hard labour and 12 strokes of the birch by Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy.

Prosecuting, Inspector K. W. Andrew, who is attached to the S.C.A. said that the defendant and the little girl both lived at the address where the offence was committed. The girl it was alleged was seen on defendant's bed by a little boy who also lived at that address. Nothing was known until noon that day when the boy and the defendant quarrelled. Their altercation was overheard by the girl's mother and nothing was done until the next day when the girl was examined by a doctor. According to the defendant's aunt, the mother of the defendant was in the country and the defendant was a lazy person.

The Magistrate: What have you got to say for yourself?

Defendant: I have nothing to say.

The Magistrate: Do you realise how serious this is? (No answer).

The Magistrate: It is a very serious matter indeed interfering with little girls like this I've got to make it quite clear that this sort of thing is frowned upon. You will take six months' imprisonment and 12 strokes of the birch. If you were properly developed I'd give you 24.

house at No. 812 Canton Road second floor, by Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday. Nineteen other men were charged with gambling. Five failed to appear and their bail of $3 each was estreated, while the remainder were each fined $4. Detective Sergeant J. Headridge stated that the men were playing "pal kau." A sum of $14.50, picked up, was placed in the Poor Box.

Pleading guilty to having committed a breach of the Deportation Ordinance, by returning to the Colony after having been banished for a period of ten years on September 10, 1934, Law Hung, aged 40, unemployed, was sentenced to nine months' hard labour by Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday. Defendants admitted a previous conviction for keeping a sly brothel. Detective Sergeant Goodwin stated that the man was arrested on information.

SUMMARY COURT ACTION

Mr. McPartland Wins Claim

At the Summary Court yesterday morning, Mr. J. McPartland succeeded in his claim for $158, being the amount at 10 per cent of a payment made through the defendant, Mr. C. J. Rocha, by his employers, Messrs. Logan and Amps, to the plaintiff, which amount was received by the defendant from the plaintiff in a verbal agreement made on March 18, that the same should be repaid to the plaintiff on a certain contingency.

This contingency, which had since arisen, was to the effect that if he, the plaintiff, should be called upon to furnish any more brick dust to Messrs. Logan and Amps, then that amount should be repaid to him.

His Lordship gave judgment for the plaintiff for the amount of his claim, with costs, but excluding certain costs occasioned by an amendment to the claim.

Death Of Oldest Royal Servant

ENTERED SERVICE OF QUEEN VICTORIA'S MOTHER

London, Dec. 13.

The oldest royal servant died at Windsor Castle yesterday—the age of 91. He was Mr. William Barker, and one of his proud boasts was that for every one of the 20 years that he was vintner-keeper at the royal vine, Cumberland Lodge, Windsor Great Park, he had more than 1000 bunches on this fine old vine.

Born in 1844 on the royal estate at Windsor, Mr. Barker entered the service of the Duchess of Kent, mother to Queen Victoria, when he was 14, and for four years he wheeled her about the grounds in a bath-chair.

The Duchess took a great fancy to young Barker, and asked Queen Victoria to keep him on the royal establishment.

The Queen sent him to the gardens, where he was taught how to tend grapes, and he was subsequently appointed vintner-keeper.

In the reign of Edward VII, he returned to Frogmore, and was finally put on pension in 1919 by King George. Also in recognition of his unique record he was granted a cottage in which to live at the Castle for life.

On his 90th birthday the King and Queen visited and congratulated him. He leaves one son. His wife predeceased him seven years ago.

CHINESE TO STAND TRIAL

Alleged Possession Of Forged Notes

After a protracted hearing, the case in which three Chinese are held on various charges of possession of forged notes, was concluded at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon, when Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen committed them to stand trial at the next Sessions.

The defendants were:—Pun Shu, master of the Kam Cheung Piece Goods shop, Cheung Kin Pul, bookkeeper of the On Lok Yuen Cafe, No. 25 Des Voeux Road Central, and Sze Po Wal, unemployed, charged with the possession of forged bank notes.

The first defendant was represented by Mr. Hin Shing Lo, instructed by Mr. J. M. Hall, second defendant was defended by Mr. J. M. D'Almada Remedios, and the third accused was defended by Mr. F. G. Nigel.

Mr. E. H. Williams, Assistant Attorney General, assisted by Detective Inspector K. W. Andrew conducted the case for the Crown.

Cheung Kin-pul was charged with the possession of a forged $10 bank note of the Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China, Pun Shu faced charges of uttering a forged $50 banknote of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation and the possession of one forged $50 note of the same bank and nine forged $10 banknotes of the Chartered Bank; and Sze Po-wai was charged with possession of a forged $50 note of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, a forged 20 piastre bank note, and a forged 5 piastre note of the Banque de l'Indo-Chine.

At the conclusion of a lengthy cross examination by Mr. Williams of the first defendant who went into the witness box yesterday, Mr. Hin Shing Lo submitted that no conscientious jury would convict on the evidence just heard. His client had been subjected to a very close cross-examination by the Assistant Attorney General and was not shaken from his story. His client, as had been disclosed in evidence, possessed a small business in the country, and on this account, he (Mr. Hin Shing Lo) would ask for his acquittal.

His Worship said that in his opinion a prima facie had been made out and it was for a jury to decide.

Mr. D'Almada Remedios and Mr. Nigel both intimated that they would reserve their defence for the Higher Court.

He leaves one son. His wife predeceased him seven years ago.

MENTAL PATIENT COMMITTS MURDER

Doctor's Action Criticised

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE IN NEED OF REVISION

Seremban, Dec. 23.

"I think it advisable to recommend that no certificate of discharge in a suspected mental case should be signed by a medical officer until he has made adequate inquiries as to the reasons for the suspected mental instability, and until he is satisfied after adequate observation that such reasons are insufficient to warrant sending the suspect for further observation. Had that been done in this case, these two lives would have been saved."

"A further feature of this case is that it has brought to light the fact that there is no provision in the Criminal Procedure Code for recording evidence against an accused person suspected to be of unsound mind, with a view to preserving for production later when he is found fit to stand his trial."

"There is, of course, provision for recording evidence against an accused person who has absconded, and it would seem advisable to have some similar provision in a case like the present. I understand that this is under consideration."

RAN AMOK

These comments were made by Mr. J. Calder, the Seremban magistrate, who has just been transferred to Kuala Lumpur. The conclusion of an inquiry here into the death of two Chinese.

The magistrate recently commented a rubber tapper, Chin Yen of Nial, for his courage in overpowering another Chinese, Lau Seng, who, the magistrate found, ran amok again a week later and stabbed two men to death.

Mr. Calder said: "There is insufficient evidence to show whether Lau Seng was of unsound mind at the time he inflicted the fatal wounds. He has been under observation in the Central Mental Hospital, Tanjong Rambutan, since the day following the stabbing, but the Superintendent is unable to give an opinion as to the state of his mind. There are several unusual features in this inquiry which I think call for comment."

"Lau Seng showed signs of mental aberration about a week before the fatal stabbing. According to Chin Yen, Lau Seng was usually a quiet, reserved man but he suddenly became very violent. Chin Yen tackled him and overpowered him with the help of his comrades."

"Lau Seng was then tied up and handed over to the Police. The following day the Police sent him to the General Hospital, Seremban with a report on Police Form 57 (exhibit No. 1) saying he was suspected of being mentally unsound."

"Lau Seng was kept in hospital for a week and then discharged as he had been quite well-behaved while under observation. On the evening of the day he was released he fatally attacked the two deceased."

"He was arrested a few hours later and showed signs of mental instability. He was accordingly sent to Tanjong Rambutan where he has been ever since."

"A GREAT FIT"

"Dr. Tara Singh, the Assistant Medical Officer who certified Lau Seng as fit to be released on the day of the fatal attack, never saw the report on Police Form 57 nor did he make any inquiries to find out why Lau Seng was suspected to be of unsound mind. This is a great pity."

"Dr. Tara Singh himself admits that had he been aware of the facts related by Chin Yen, he would not have discharged Lau Seng but would have sent him immediately to the Central Mental Hospital, Tanjong Rambutan, for observation."

"Although the particulars supplied on the form were somewhat sketchy, in the circumstances they should, in my opinion, have been sufficient to put Dr. Tara Singh on his guard."

"There is no reason why the information given by Chin Yen could not have been supplied by the police to the medical authorities if they had made a simple inquiry from the Officer in Charge of Police District Seremban."

"Had that been done in this case the whole story would have come out and two lives would have been saved."

REFORM NEEDED

"While I hesitate to offer criticism on a technical matter of the nature, I would nevertheless suggest for the consideration of the hospital authorities that in future, the Police Form 57 should either be kept attached to the bed-head ticket of a suspected mental case, or that an abstract showing why the patient is mentally unsound should be entered on the bed-head ticket."

"I would further suggest that where the particulars supplied by the Police on Form 57 are insufficient or lacking in detail, an immediate inquiry, as a matter of routine, should be sent to the Officer in Charge of Police District."

In conclusion I should like to place on record an appreciation of the good work done by the Police in apprehending the accused."

GRAVE ACTION

"In this connection the assistance rendered by the Chinese witnesses Khan Ah Kim, Toi Seng and Lee Leong Pin, who raised the alarm and got in touch with the Police and then entered this house to assist in capturing an accused although they knew that he was armed with a dangerous weapon, deserves commendation."

"Chek Fatt, who was attacked at the same time as the deceased, but who fortunately survived, deserves great credit for his presence of mind and courage in tackling the accused. So also does Chin Yen."

"I recommend that letters of appreciation be sent by Government to each of these men for their public-spirited action, which is highly desirable to foster and encourage."

"I also recommend that Chek Fatt, who is out of work and who has suffered considerable injury at the hands of Lau Seng, be given $50."

WHERE GERMANY LEADS

The dogs are trained at Walsby by Captain Likhoff, a Russian. His duties also include the training of English men and women as dog trainers.

Striking results have already been achieved. Of these not the least has been the benefit to the health of the blind, who, thanks to the dog guides, can now take brisk exercises.

The venture is a new one for this country but it is already proving success in other countries. Germany, for example, has 12,000 registered dog guides. Here we are only in the early hundreds.

ARCTIC EXPLORATION

Mr. E. Shackleton's Story Of Oxford Expedition

London, Dec. 12.

The son of the late Sir Ernest Shackleton, the Antarctic explorer, Mr. Edward Shackleton, lectured in the Free Trade Hall, Manchester, last night on the exploration of unknown Arctic lands of the Empire.

The lecture, the proceeds of which were for the exploration fund, was held by arrangement with the Athenaeum Club, Manchester, and was a description of the recent Oxford University expedition to Ellesmere Land and Grant Land, in the Canadian Arctic, which was led by Dr. Noel Humphreys and organised by Mr. Shackleton, with the support of the Canadian Government and the Royal Geographical Society. The expedition sailed from London on July, 1934, in a Norwegian sealer, and returned to Barra, in the Outer Hebrides, on October 11 last, having accomplished a large amount of scientific work, particularly in geology.

Manchester Help for Expedition

The Lord Mayor of Manchester (Alderman T. S. Williams) presided, and introduced Mr. Shackleton, who is only 24 years of age, and who lectured in public for the first time last night. Mr. Shackleton in an introductory reference to the financing of the expedition, spoke of the great help received from certain Manchester firms (which he named), without which, he said, it would not have been possible for the expedition to have taken place. He described how the expedition had hoped to force its way to north of latitude 81 degrees and establish winter quarters in Northern Ellesmere Land. A jam of ice, blocking the whole of Smith Sound, forced them, however, to winter at Etah, in Northern Greenland.

In April the expedition split up into three parties of two, each accompanied by four Eskimos. In Grant Land, the exploration of which was the main objective of the expedition, Messrs. Stallworthy and Moore after a 300-mile journey, reached Lake Hazen, in Southern Grant Land. From here Moore, with one Eskimo, pushed on into unknown Grant Land, and discovered a new range of mountains, 10,000 feet high, Moore himself climbing to a height of over 8,000 feet and planting the Union Jack given by the Duke of York, in latitude 82 degrees 30 minutes north.

In Western Ellesmere Land Dr. Humphreys and Mr. David Haig-Thomas travelled in unexplored territory and completed the first crossing from Bay Foul to Vendom Fjord, while Mr. Shackleton and Mr. Bentham, among other explorations, found that the Victoria and Albert Mountains, originally seen by Nares and mapped by him, twenty miles inland actually bordered the shores of Scoresby Bay.

Wireless Programmes

Describing wintering at Etah, "one of the worst possible bases in the world," Mr. Shackleton said they had excellent wireless reception, hearing virtually all the English regional stations. The American programmes, full of advertisements of what to eat, were, in the circumstances, rather incongruous. (Laughter.) Eskimos, to whose trustworthy qualities he paid tribute, and were frightened of any white man who lost his temper. While regarding the white races with admiration, they despised us for war and fighting tendencies, for when he showed to his Eskimos a picture of two little children fighting they were so shocked that they would not speak to him for an hour afterwards. He referred to Eskimo women being clothed entirely in blue and white fox skins, the clothes of one woman being worth (in England) from £20 to £30.

The Eskimos brought up their children without any punishment at all, and rarely seemed to discipline them. But there was some understanding by which they always obeyed a leader, so that a three-year-old child would always obey one of five years old. There was never any question of disobedience.

During a storm on the return journey the propeller of the ship, previously fractured by ice, dropped off 700 miles west of the Scottish coast, but the expedition managed to reach Barra safely.

Child Sacrifice Of 2000 B.C.

REVEALED BY A SKELETON NEAR BRIGHTON

The skeleton of a child, believed to have been sacrificed to some pagan god two thousand years before Christianity, has been found on a plot of land at Whitehawk, Brighton.

The discovery was made during the construction of a road from Whitehawk to the top of the Rake Hill by the Brighton Racecourse. The skeleton was discovered in a hole in a position which suggested it had been placed there with some ceremony. Apparently a large pole or block of stone had been forced into the hole on top of the child.

Excavation work is being conducted with the assistance of London University students under the guidance of Dr. Mortimer Wheeler and Miss L. Scott.

Dr. Cecil Curwen, the Sussex archaeologist, said:

"As yet it is only a surmise that the child was made a human sacrifice. A hole was discovered near an entrenchment or defensive ditch, and not far from it was a much larger and deeper hole in which this skeleton lay."

BLIND MAN'S TRIUMPH

A totally blind man won a remarkable triumph at the recent five miles walking race at Bangor, in North Wales.

This was Mr. T. ap Rhys, who was just beaten by the local champion, finished second, and beat the previous best time by one and a half minutes.

Mr. Rhys was led throughout by an Alsatian dog supplied by the Guide Dogs for the Blind Association.

The association was started a year or two ago.

"STAGNATION" OF JUNIOR OFFICERS

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Kuala Lumpur, Dec. 23.—The "stagnation" of junior officers on the maximum salaries of grades was referred to by Mr. S. P. Joseph, presiding at the annual meeting of the Government Junior Officers' Association, F.M.S., in the Town Hall, Kuala Lumpur, to-day.

Mr. Joseph said that with the tenure of better times they were confident that Government would enable every efficient officer to receive his promotion after about two years' service on the maximum of their respective grades.

The chairman said that the severity of retrenchment affected not only the members of the Service, but also their association. Now that the financial depression was almost over he hoped that more support would be given to the association.

"Our Committee did all it could to persuade the Government to reduce the severity of retrenchment. We are extremely thankful to the Government, who have been considerate to some extent."

100 NEW APPOINTMENTS

"The association is indebted to Government for the 100 new appointments in Class II by the Railway Electrical Service created to relieve stagnation on the maximum of Class III."

The following were elected officers for the ensuing year: President, Mr. S. P. Joseph, vice-presidents, Mr. Khoo Choo Foon, Mr. M. W. Nairn, members of council, Messrs. K. Shanmugam, A. Chelliah, V. ## REFUGEES FROM GERMANY

Criticism Evokes An Answer

Berlin, Jan. 4. An official German reply to the memorandum by Mr. J. G. MacDonald, resigning his post as League High Commissioner for refugees from Germany because of intensified persecution of the Jews, has been issued by a German news agency.

The reply states that because Germany is at last endeavouring to straighten out abuse and domination by foreign elements, people in many parts of the world thought they were authorised to utter derogatory criticism of Germany and give German advice while the same world remained mute to all persecutions of Germans, beginning with the Versailles Treaty and extending to the recent expulsion and expatriation of the inhabitants of Eupen and Malmédy from their home country.

The opinion exists in Germany, says the reply, that the League of Nations has every reason to concern itself firstly with the treatment of minorities' concessions within the League States before it claims authority to concern itself with how Germany is carrying out the inner reconstruction of the nation following material and moral experiences of its collapse.

PRESIDENT MASARYK

It has been known for some time that President Masaryk, the Grand Old Man of Czechoslovakia, was on the point of laying down the Presidency. The moment arrived about two weeks ago. In his letter of resignation he wrote: "The Presidential office requires the full vigour of a man," and at 85 he finds he can no longer meet its demands. The whole world will salute him as he steps down, for the whole world admires and respects him. He can rightly be called the Father of his country.

Hero-worship is not much in fashion nowadays in most Parliamentary countries. That is unfortunate, for it is a strong natural instinct, though it has produced astonishing results in Italy, Poland, and Germany when turned to anti-democratic uses. But the people of Czechoslovakia have remained constant in their devotion to Masaryk from the day he was appointed President of the infant Republic after the Austrian Empire had crashed and lay broken in pieces as it fell.

There have been more dazzling careers than his, for he was only ambitious to win back the political freedom which the Czechs lost in the Thirty Years War, and had no thought of his own glory or self-aggrandisement. He had convinced himself that the Czech aspirations could only be realized by the downfall of Austria; when the war came, he at once went to exile, and worked might and main to win over the Governments of Great Britain and France to the cause which he held so sacred.

Tracing back the pages of history, one finds that it is one thing to be a patriot liberator, but quite another to direct the helm for seventeen years as to retain the unbroken confidence of a people and of its allies and friends. Under the guidance of Masaryk, Czechoslovakia has made great economic and social progress, she has retained even her currency on a stable footing, she has sought peace and ended it—indulging no vain illusions by a strengthening system of alliances and by a firm and unwavering attachment to the League of Nations. Masaryk has enjoyed the inestimable advantage of having Dr. Benes as his Foreign Minister. The latter, like Masaryk, was a professor at Prague, and possessed of one of the coolest and shrewdest heads in Central Europe. It is no surprise, therefore, to find Dr. Benes recommended by name as his successor in Masaryk's letter of resignation on the specific ground that "we require a well-conducted foreign policy."

A glance at the map of Europe shows Czechoslovakia thrusting deeply into the heart of Germany and Austria. Hungary, Rumania and Poland all have contiguous frontiers. Was it not that Blumark once observed that whoever held Bohemia held the keys to Germany? We can also call to mind that recent German comments on the treaty between the Soviet Republic and Czechoslovakia described the latter as "Russia's Aircraft Carrier." Of all the succession States, therefore, Czechoslovakia requires most of all the "well-conducted foreign policy" for which the aged President pleaded. For that reason the election of Dr. Benes as his successor would be most warmly welcomed to all sincere supporters of the status quo at this troubled moment.

sub in annual savings of £236,000 in Australian currency and will bring the total annual interest savings as a result of the eleven conversion operations up to £3,842,000 in Australian currency.

REPRIEVE HOPE ABANDONED

Hauptmann's Wife Books Passage

New York, Jan. 2.

Following the flight of Colonel and Mrs. Charles Lindbergh to Europe, Mrs. Bruno Hauptmann, wife of the man condemned to die in the electric chair for the murder of the Lindbergh baby, has reserved steamship passages for herself and three-year-old child on a ship bound for Germany, according to a sensational story published by the "Daily News" to-day.

The passages are said to have been booked under fictitious names. The name of the vessel and its sailing date have not been revealed, but a cash deposit on the tickets has already been paid, the paper asserts.

The paper adds that Mrs. Hauptmann has apparently given up all hope for her husband and intends to sail after the execution, probably taking her husband's body with her.

The "Daily Mirror" states that invitations to a privileged few to witness Hauptmann's execution have already been distributed and bear the date of January 14.

The New Jersey Court of Pardons meets early next week to decide Hauptmann's fate.

Meanwhile, the defence lawyers intimate that they are producing at this session an actual photograph of "the real murderer." But Hauptmann's only hope appears to be for commutation of his sentence to one of life imprisonment in exchange for "a full and frank confession naming his accomplices," which has been virtually promised him by Governor Hoffman of New Jersey.

THIRD TEST MATCH

South Africa In Bad Way

Capetown, Jan. 3.

Torrential rain delayed the start of the Third Test Match to-day (second day) until 2.45 p.m. The Australian captain wanted to start at 2 o'clock. The South African captain disagreed and said they could not be expected to bat on a sticky pitch which, if adequately covered, would have been as plumb as for the Australian yesterday. To settle the argument umpires were called in and decided that the pitch could be played on.

The Australians who had scored 382 for 8 the previous day did not continue their innings, but declared. The bowling figures were: Crisp 1 for 30, Langton 1 for 94, Robertson 2 for 75 and Balakias 126 for 4, the last named bowling 38 overs in which he sent down one maiden.

There were 2,000 people present when South Africa commenced to bat. It was fine and warm, but the wicket was sticky. There was no tea interval. South Africa scored 102. Nourse, 44 not out, being the only player to master the bowling. Grimmett took 5 for 32, bowling 17 overs including four maidens. Fleetwood Smith, 2 for 21, McCabe 1 for 9, O'Reilly 1 for 24.

South Africa, with a deficit of 280 runs, were forced to follow on and played until closing time, scoring 11 runs without loss.

ALERT WATCH KEPT BY BOTH SIDES

Egypt-Libyan Frontier Conditions

London, Jan. 3.

The alert watch being kept on both sides of the Egypt-Libyan frontier by troops is described in a vivid despatch from Mr. Kenneth Anderson, Reuter's Special War Correspondent at Sollum.

The correspondent reached his destination from Alexandria after a six-hundred-mile solo motor drive across the desert in the course of which he was marooned for hours owing to breakdown until he was picked up by an R.A.S.C. convoy.

On the Italian side guards were keeping constant observation from a fort and roof tops at Amseet on Sollum for sign of any movements. If anything apparently unusual happens an aeroplane ascends to investigate, but it carefully keeps to its own side of the frontier.

Turbaned blacks of the Egyptian camel corps are posted strategically on desert hollocks, ceaselessly watching the Italian barbed wire barriers.

It was because of his intemperate utterances and violent personal attacks during the Tichborne trial that Dr. Kenney was cashiered as a Benchers' and ultimately disbarred by his colleagues. Disbarment may also be of a quite innocent and voluntary character. If, for example, a barrister wishes to start practice as a solicitor. The late Mr. Eugene Wason, M.P., was disbarred at his own request, and for a number of years practised as a solicitor. Then he resigned this occupation and was readmitted to the Bar as an experienced and perhaps unique in English law.

POSSIBILITY OF EARLY SETTLEMENT OF THE CONFLICT

Reported Hopefulness At Vatican

HOLY SEE AFFECTED BY SANCTIONS

Premier Laval's Promise To Papal Envoy

SURPRISING ARTICLE BY HENRI PICHOT

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press").
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894.
Received, January 3, 7:30 p.m.)

Paris, January 3.
A surprising assertion is made by the Rome correspondent of "Le Jour" that authoritative circles in the Vatican reckon with the possibility of an early settlement of the Abyssinian conflict. Even during the Christmas holidays Vatican circles were very hopeful after having been deeply pessimistic for months previously. The cause for the changed outlook is said to be an attempt made by Belgium to act as an intermediary.

At all events the Vatican believes, writes "Le Jour" correspondent, that Signor Mussolini has been convinced that a settlement must be made through Geneva. Moreover, Mr. Anthony Eden would not oppose the new plan for settlement if "it were more modest" than that of December 8 and if no exchange of territory was proposed.

"L'Ouvrier" also publishes a surprising report from the Vatican to the effect that the Holy See was very adversely affected by the sanctions measures. Not only has the number of pilgrims and visitors to the Vatican diminished but the Vatican finances suffered a severe blow because, though the Vatican is a sovereign state and has no banks of its own, all its funds are being administered by Italian banks who can no longer receive funds from abroad.

Everyday writes M. Pichot, warnings and even threats were uttered by Italy to France. This was neither correct nor dignified and cannot lead to any desirable result. In reality it would be more appropriate to ask less seldom whether France was true in her friendship to Italy, and more often whether Italy was loyal to her friendship to France.

NATIONAL SUICIDE
The question is whether it is possible that Signor Mussolini is a man who might plunge his own country, France, and other states into a European War—whereby Italy itself would incur extraordinary risks—can to-day be answered with "Yes."

A great colonial power, for instance France, writes M. Pichot, simply cannot believe that conquest of Abyssinia is a matter of life or death for Italy. The Italians themselves drive drama to extremity. To extricate itself from its present predicament Italy was now presenting national suicide, hinting even at European suicide.

That is, however, not necessary nor rational and not courageous. All the friends of Italy, concluded M. Pichot, appeal to her to let reason govern her passion.

SILVER POLICY OF AMERICA

Treasury Head's Explanation

Washington, Jan. 2.
Mr. Henry Morgenthau, the Secretary of the Treasury, to-day expressed the belief that the current conferences with Mexican officials would be beneficial to countries using a silver currency.

"It is to the interest of silver producing countries to work together closely in this matter," he said.

He went on to explain that the present conferences with Mexico followed the programme established by President Roosevelt at the time of the passage of the Silver Purchase Act. He recalled that the President then said that the U.S. Government had taken the initiative in inaugurating talks with neighbourly states on monetary policies. Mexico was the first to be called in for discussion.

Mr. Morgenthau indicated that the Mexico conferences might be followed by similar discussions with other countries.

CHRISTMAS DAY INCIDENT

Italian Airmen Help Ally

London, Jan. 3.
A report delayed by the censor which has just reached Reuters relates an incident which occurred on Christmas day at the front which reads more like adventures written for schoolboys than an actual hard fact.

According to Reuters' Correspondent, an Italian Somali native chief ally of the Italian was surrounded on Christmas day by two Abyssinian columns. His ammunition ran out and the nearest Italian source of supply was 150 miles away.

Wireless signals were hurriedly sent and two Italian bombers soon roared overhead, dropping ammunition to the beleaguered. One machine was brought down injured by a lucky burst of Abyssinian fire, and the remaining machine then flew over the spot for two hours keeping off the Abyssinian attackers until repairs were effected and the machine departed safely for the Italian lines.

The sequel was written in the affair next day, Boxing Day, when the whole squadron of Italian bombers drove out the Abyssinians from that district.

The other Ethiopian success was achieved at the village of Kibbi, where two planes, flying low, machine-gunned the population. Troops and house-holders returned the fire and one of the planes crashed. Its two occupants were killed.

SWEDISH RED CROSS MEETING

Grief And Indignation Expressed

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press").
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894.

Stockholm, January 3.
At the meeting of the Executive Committee of the Swedish Red Cross, Prince Charles of Sweden, brother of King Gustav, gave expression to the grief and indignation of the entire Swedish nation over the misfortune that befell the Swedish ambulance unit in Abyssinia.

The Prince pointed out that the ambulance had been destined to render aid alike to the Abyssinian and the Italian victims of the war. Although the latest reports showed that at least the Swedish losses were not so great, as had been feared, this in no way diminished the terrible responsibility resting on the aggressor.

The Prince stressed that many of the Abyssinians had been killed who had sought the protection of the Swedish ambulance and the International Red Cross.

After the Prince had read a telegram of condolence which had been addressed to the Negus on behalf of the Swedish Red Cross, the Committee decided to offer the League of Nations the necessary funds for carrying out an extensive enquiry concerning the question of responsibility for the bombardment and to complement the personnel to replace the destroyed equipment of the ill-fated ambulance unit.

CASUALTY LIST
Addis Ababa, Jan. 2.
Thirty Abyssinians were killed and fifty wounded in the Italian air attack on the Swedish Red Cross unit near Dolo, according to an official statement here on Thursday which gives a graphic account of the air raid.

It is asserted that twelve Italian aeroplanes flew over the positions held by troops of Ras Desta last Monday dropping leaflets announcing that reprisals would be taken for the alleged murder by the Abyssinians of a captured Italian pilot.

STATEMENT REFUTED
Shortly afterwards the Swedish Red Cross unit at Melka, and Dideka, near Dolo was attacked by planes with bombs and machine guns. 30 Abyssinians were killed and 50 Swedes wounded, all of whom received treatment in the Swedish ambulance.

The Italian statement that the leaders of the Abyssinian troops had on sighting the air craft, taken refuge in the Red Cross tents, are refuted here by the assertion that the Red Cross unit was located at about two thirds of a mile distance from the next Abyssinian camp.

Two motor lorries, and all the tents as well as medical provisions are stated to have been destroyed by the bombs.

AMERICAN NEUTRALITY LEGISLATION

Discriminatory Powers To Be Curtailed

Washington, Jan. 3.
All ideas empowering the President to discriminate between aggressor and victim in America's new neutrality legislation has been abandoned by President Roosevelt and his advisers according to the "Washington Post," which understands that the new Bill which will be introduced at Congress either to-day or Monday will empower the President to restrict shipments to belligerents of oil, cotton, scrap iron, copper and other war materials to normal peace time levels.

Any embargo or restriction imposed by the President must be applied impartially to all belligerents irrespective of rights or wrongs of war. Thus members of the League taking military sanctions against an aggressor would be equally liable to such measures.

The "Washington Post" understands that the New Bill has been approved by Mr. Cordell Hull, Senator Pittman and Mr. McReynolds, Chairman of Senate and House of Foreign Affairs Committees respectively.

This account is confirmed by the "New York Times" which believes the new Bill will also ban all loans or credits to belligerents.

There was a further increase of the areas under water owing to floods in parts of the Thames valley to-day, but in the upper reaches local Thames Conservancy officials expressed the view that floods were now on the point of receding.

From the round tower of Windsor Castle stretches of water are to be seen on all sides and the water has invaded the private grounds of the Castle.

Parts, but not all of Eton playing fields are under water, and certain roads in Eton are closed to traffic. Interference with road traffic, which is being temporarily diverted in many parts of the country, is causing considerable congestion elsewhere.

COMPLICATIONS FORESEEN OVER THE NEW L. B. W. RULE

Its History Outlined: Present Experimental Law Not Accepted In Australia

In these times the course of cricket is not allowed to run smoothly for long, writes "Watchman" in the "Sunday Observer." The old subject of contention, the leg-before-wicket rule, has now become prominent again as a cause of difference of opinion between England and Australia.

Lord Hawke, full of good intentions, no doubt but acting unofficially, sent a cablegram to the Australian Board of Control, in which he expressed "the sincere hope" that the Board would "seriously reconsider their position" and allow their team to play under the new L.B.W. rule during the tour in South Africa. Probably he imagined that the mere mention of his name would carry a tremendous influence with the Board. But in this rapid age, when the events of one week are almost forgotten before the end of the next, it is possible that some of the members of the Board had never so much as heard Lord Hawke's name, just as many of a new generation have very hazy ideas of the qualities even of such giants as "Rahji" and C. B. Fry. Anyhow, the Board were not impressed. They decline to go back on their decision. And on top of this there comes an announcement from Johannesburg that the Transvaal Cricket Union, following the example of the Western Province, have decided to revert to the old rule after using the new last season.

The law which governs leg-before-wicket has agitated many minds for many years. When a change somewhat similar to that introduced last season was advocated so long ago as 1901, a vote taken at a special meeting of the M.C.C. showed that 299 were in favour of it against 188, but as the necessary two-thirds majority was not obtained, no alteration could be made. The subject, continued to be debated until, in 1935, an experimental rule, which applied only to first-class matches, made it possible for batsmen to be out to breaking or averting balls that pitched outside the off-stump. Opinions varied as to the extent of the benefit brought by the change, but even those who had been its foremost enemies admitted that if it did not work the miracles hoped for by its friends, it did not harm the game. At least the many calamities predicted by some people—ridiculous decisions, distracted umpires, matches reduced to farce on rain-affected pitches—did not enter. But evidently the governing body of Australia have no use for it. Otherwise they would willingly have tried it as an experiment in case it is made a permanent law.

TEST TROUBLES IN STORE

Now in an ordinary domestic year there is no need to worry ourselves about the way cricket is played in Australia or in South Africa or in any other country. Their batsmen could make up the rules as the game goes on, and none of us would shed tears. But the troubles may come with future Test matches.

There is a big probability that if the new L.B.W. law finds favour with the counties after another season of experiment it will be passed into the rules. Yet it seems possible that even in that event such stubborn people as the Australians may still decline to accept the new conditions on their own grounds. In any event it is now unlikely that they will consent to play under the temporary rule when an England team visits Australia next autumn. If they did consent their own players, unfamiliar with it, would be at a big disadvantage when opposed to batsmen who had been given two seasons in which to make themselves familiar to it, and the Australians are not the people to allow the opposition to load the dice against them. But if the next series of Test matches is played under the old rule the English batsmen who have reshaped the technique of their footwork to meet the new rule will be badly handicapped. There appear to be breakers ahead.

The danger is that if cricket legislation continues on its present course there will gradually be evolved two different games of the same name. Already in Australia this over consists of eight balls instead of the old six, and the following rule differs from that which applies in England. The size of the wicket, too, is allowed to be different to the extent of two inches in height and width according to the wishes of players outside English county cricket, and so far club players have stuck to the old leg-before rule.

No game can flourish among players of all degrees unless it is governed strictly by uniform laws. What we have to fear is that, a breach once made between club and county, between country and country, may widen until the cricket of ordinary men or boys plays before a different nature from the cricket that he watches. Such a condition of affairs would assuredly undermine popularity and stifle development.

WHEREIN THE BLAME

The recent changes have not been made necessary by any fundamental fault of cricket as it used to be fashioned. The increase in the size of the wicket came as a consequence of the artificial preparation of pitches. The pitches, not the old size of the stumps, caused the mischief. And the change in the L.B.W. rule was supported because first-class batsmen had got into such shocking bad habits and wandered so far from the path of rectitude that they used their pads in preference to their bats. The players were to blame, not the old rule.

It is lamentable that first-class cricket should have got into such a position that the M.C.C. consider themselves obliged to legislate for a very small corner at the expense of the greater world of cricket which supplies the game with its life blood. For every county batsman there are ten thousand club batsmen. There was a time when the laws of the M.C.C. ruled supreme everywhere. Cricket was the same in its principles at Toowoomba as at Lord's. Now the circumstances which get a man out at Trent Bridge or Old Trafford need not cut short an innings at Sydney or Johannesburg; and the wicket which a player defends in a Saturday afternoon league match may be of different size to that which is in use on the neighbouring ground.

The fact that an experimental rule adopted in this country has not found favour in Australia makes it evident that since cricket has become an imperial game, with visits between one country and another frequently exchanged, parochial legislation is out of place. Before even a temporary change in a rule is made, something more than the blessing of the county captain is now desirable. The Imperial Conference must have a voice. Otherwise only fog and muddle can result, as is the case to-day.

Rotary Club Hears Of Sex Control

CLAIM TO GREAT ADVANCES, BUT NOT PERFECTION

Shanghai, Dec. 28. Members of the Shanghai Rotary Club held their usual dinner-reunion yesterday at the Metro-pole Hotel, and listened with interest to an address on "the biological foundation of sex control" by Dr. C. C. Chen, Professor of Biology at the University of Shanghai, who said the gorgeous colouration of the butterfly, the striking display of the plumage of birds like the peacock, and the stately look of an antlered stag, with many other special behaviours in the animal kingdom only could be properly interpreted in terms of sex. It was equally a mystery, as it was an inspiration.

"In attempting to understand sex," said Dr. Chen, "many theories have been formulated. Some are imaginary, some are too fantastic and many are mere superstitions. Darwinism, in 1859, recorded 282 theories of sex. Since 1902, Geddes and Thomson have claimed that this number has at least been doubled. It is our common knowledge now that our body is made up of two kinds of cells, one known as the body cells, which constitute the bulk of our body, while the other, known as the germ or sex cells, occupy only a small area in the body, but bear a great mission, being responsible for the propagation of the race.

Passing on to a highly scientific dissertation, Dr. Chen applied mentioned various experiments and concluded by saying: "The methods of sex control I have dealt with may not have reached their final stage of perfection, yet they are of such a practical nature that they may merit our serious consideration. Sex control has been a dream of the animal breeder from time immemorial, and this dream may or may not ever be realised; yet, by the methods of physiology, chemistry, and electricity, a way has now been opened up. How much and how far man can conquer nature in the control of sex still remains to be seen."

SABOTAGE IN H.M. SHIPS

Refitting Work On Royal Oak Delayed

London, Dec. 11. The Admiralty stated yesterday that two cases of attempted sabotage have occurred this year in H.M. ships in dockyard hands at Devonport—namely, in the submarine Oberon and the battleship Royal Oak.

"Inquiries into these cases are now proceeding," it was stated, "and it is not in the public interest to make any statement at present." The two acts of attempted sabotage were revealed at Plymouth during the week-end. It is understood that the incident on the Royal Oak delayed the refitting work on the battleship and caused damage amounting to several hundred pounds. An official investigation has been instituted.

CABLE PIERCED

It was reported on Sunday that a short circuit led to the failure of all the electrical work on the Royal Oak, and that the fault was not traced for three days.

It was then found that a sail pin had pierced the cable connecting the electric power station in the dockyard with the control tower of the battleship.

The top of the pin, it was stated, appeared to have been filed off, and the lead covering of the cable seemed to have been replaced, making detection of this fault very difficult.

The damage to the submarine Oberon was effected several weeks ago while the vessel was undergoing refitting at Devonport Dockyard. A commutator was reported to have been interfered with.

It was stated in unofficial quarters during the week-end that an investigation had followed the trials on the refitted submarine.

EXTENSIVE REPAIRS

H.M.S. Royal Oak (29,100 tons) was withdrawn from the First Battle Squadron in March last year, and transferred to dockyard control in the following June for extensive repairs which up to the end of last March had cost over £312,000. The vessel was completed in 1918, and by the replacement schedule of the Washington Treaty should have been replaced this year.

All new naval construction was deferred for six years under the London Treaty, and the Royal Oak was consequently repaired.

The Oberon, a 1311-ton submarine of the "O" class, was built at Chatham, and launched in 1926.

The chief officers at present attached to the Royal Oak are Lieutenant W. L. Whitaker and Commander (E.) V. E. Kemball.

Shortly before the end, the Club took the lead and held out till the final whistle.

Ipoh, Dec. 23. The first 100-mile bicycle race organised in the State was won by 19-year-old Ng Choon San, captain of the Rough Riders Association of Kuala Lumpur.

The race attracted eleven starters, two of whom were disqualified owing to taking a wrong course, one being the winner of a three-mile race, organised two years ago. Although the race was scheduled for 100 miles the competitors actually covered 117 the route being from Batu Gajah to Ipoh via Kampar Road, Tiger Lane, Tanjong Rambutan, Chemor and Kuala Kangsar.

The winner took 5 hours 35 minutes to complete the journey. Only five completed the race, one having to change his machine at Chemor owing to a punctured tyre. One Malay competitor fell off his machine at Tanjong Rambutan and withdrew from the race. The officials of the meet followed the competitors on motor cycles. ## Tyne's Improved Trade

INCREASED COAL SHIPMENTS AND OIL BUNKERING

At the monthly meeting of the Tyne Improvement Commission it was reported that coal and coke shipments, bunker shipments and general merchandise shipments were improving. October was the best month for the Commission's statistics since March.

In the 10 months of the year shipments of coal and coke totalled 11,072,374 tons, as against 11,645,972 tons in the corresponding period of last year. Oil fuel bunkers taken from the Tyne increased considerably, there being 170 ships taking 27,000 tons, an increase of 52 ships and 11,000 tons as compared with last year.
A bright feature is the reduction of laid-up tonnage. At the end of October there were only 38 vessels laid up of 83,000 net register tons, as against 72 of 140,000 tons last October.

Scheme For A Larger New Yard

A committee has been appointed in Norway and has made application to the Government for financial support, with the assistance of private individuals and the city of Oslo, to establish a new shipbuilding yard in Oslo capable of turning out 50,000 to 60,000 tons per annum.

The scheme does not directly concern the existing shipyard of the Akers, Mek, Yerksted in Oslo, but it is considered that it might be possible to develop the Nyland shipyard. The scheme also includes the construction of works to produce shipbuilding materials for the yard.

K. P. M. TOGLIAN RETURNS

After Being Aground For A Fortnight

Singapore, Dec. 25.

The K.P.M. vessel Toglian which was aground at Pulau Tembulan, near Borneo, for about a fortnight, returned to Singapore yesterday—a damaged ship. She was towed in by the motor vessel Van Heuts as her engines are disabled.

The Toglian will go into dry dock here, and the extent of the damage will be ascertained.

A few days after the Toglian grounded while on her way from Singapore to Pontianak, the K.P.M. ship Van der Lijn was despatched to her aid from Singapore. After several attempts she succeeded in refloating the Toglian.

A large proportion of the steamer's cargo had to be jettisoned to lighten her. The cargo consisted mostly of rice, cotton goods and also drums of lubricating oil.

The Van der Lijn has returned to Singapore at the same time—"Free Press."
